WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

December 18, 2025

Severe Weather & Flood Activity Northwest U.S.

- More than 300,000 homes and businesses remained without power Thursday morning after damaging winds slammed multiple states, including South Dakota, Colorado, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Washington state.
- Nearly two dozen winds gusts of more than 100 mph were recorded Wednesday. The powerful winds brought down trees and powerlines killing one man and critically injuring two children.
- The severe winds are adding to the misery for tens of thousands of people forced out of their homes by more than a week of relentless rain and deadly flooding in Washington state.
- Washington Gov. Bob Ferguson said Tuesday that crews won't be able to fully assess the damage until the water recedes and landslide risks subside.
- The state and some counties are making several million dollars available to help people pay for hotels, groceries and other necessities, pending more extensive federal assistance that Ferguson and Washington's congressional delegation expect to see approved.
- According to the governor's office, first responders had conducted at least 629 rescues and 572 assisted evacuations.
- As many as 100,000 people had been under evacuation orders at times, many of them in the flood plain of the Skagit River north of Seattle.
- Elevated rivers and flood risk could persist until at least late this month, according to the National Weather Service.
