WSP USA INSPECTION SERVICES DISASTER AWARENESS REPORT

May 29, 2026

Flash Flood Threat Southeast U.S.

- An active weather pattern that has brought a wave of rich tropical moisture across Florida and parts of the Southeast has settled over the region, triggering heavy rainfall and thunderstorms over the next few days.
- A broad Level 1 out of 4 flash flood threat stretches from eastern Kansas southward to parts of the Gulf Coast and eastward to the Atlantic coasts of Georgia and South Carolina Friday.
- A more significant Level 2 threat covers parts of Northern Georgia, including Atlanta.
- Parts of coastal South Carolina and Georgia could see 2 to 3 inches of rain through the weekend and other parts of the region could receive up to 5 inches of rain through next Thursday.
- On Saturday, the system is expected to intensify as an upper-level low pressure system develops near the Southeast.
- This will increase moisture along the coast, leading to heavy rainfall in Georgia and the Carolinas as well.
- A flash flood threat is expected farther north near Charleston, while some low-lying coastal areas may experience minor localized flooding.
- Rainfall totals are forecast to exceed 2 to 3 inches in some locations.
